ARCHERY NEWS

For the last two or three years I have talked to people, wrote articles in the Range Finder, put up signs, and went over range use and misuse of broadheads. Apparently there are still people that disregard or choose to ignore the rules. I had an article in Range Finder and notification on the calendar for three months for people interested in how the archery ranges would be run, four people plus archery leaders were all that showed up.

The rubber blocks that we have been using for years would stand up for several years. The new crossbows, compounds, and some longbows and recurves have gotten more powerful which results in more damage to target butts when broadheads are used. We can no longer keep destroying our targets by continuous use of broadheads. The targets have gone up from $100.00 to $375.00 so the expense is something we can no longer ignore.

Starting at the end of May the use of crossbows, broadheads or practice type broadheads will no longer be allowed on any of the ranges currently used. We will be adding a new range behind the ED Johnson pistol building.

There will two stands constructed to hold the large blocks currently used with the exception that they only be used as back stops for the commercial type broadhead targets. The stand will be constructed so the commercial targets will set on them in a frame. This year we will try to supply the store- bought targets BUT If people continue to destroy them by continuous use of broadheads we will forced to stop supplying broadhead targets.

If your bow is set-up properly target points and broad heads should hit closely to the same spot. Some times it is understood that you have to fine tune your bow. Once your bow is tuned you should have no reason to continually shoot broadheads.

This is the final warning for over use of broadheads. If the commercial targets are quickly destroyed it will become BRING YOUR OWN TARGETS FOR BROADHEADS AND CROSSBOWS.

Watch next month's Rangefinder for more details.

THE RIGHT TO KEEP AND BEAR ARMS

The Right to Keep and Bear Arms (RKBA) column is now available each month on the ORSAONLINE web site at (www.orsaonline.org/rkba.asp). From time to time, the RKBA column will be included in the printed version which is mailed to members' homes when space permits.

Please remember that each edition of the Rangefinder is also available online at ORSAONLINE (www.orsaonline.org/newsletters.asp) and is normally available before the edition arrives by mail.

“As a candidate, Joe Biden promised to prioritize gun violence prevention. As president, Joe Biden has not,” Igor Volsky, founder and executive director of the group Guns Down America, told the Associated Press.

“He’s made small steps but it’s not enough. The president hasn’t been receptive to our demands. We expected this from Trump, but we’re shocked that it’s coming from Biden,” David Hogg told CNN.

“My Administration stands with those working to end this epidemic of gun violence,” Joe Biden mumbled.

“We talk like there’s no amendment that’s absolute,...” “When the [Second Amendment] was passed, it didn’t say anybody can own a gun and any kind of gun and any kind of weapon. You couldn’t buy a cannon in — when the — this — this amendment was passed.” Joe Biden

Biden, when apparently talking about repealing the PLCAA, claimed the firearms industry is “the only industry in America that is exempted from being able to be sued by the public.”

Our Constitutional Republic is at risk. Every one of the rights guaranteed in the Bill of Rights is under attack. The right that guarantees every other right is the Right to Keep and Bear Arms. What the Second Amendment says is that “the right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.” In other words, it doesn’t qualify who “the people” are, and it doesn’t explain to what types of “Arms” it refers. It makes no reference to what “the people” can do, but it spells out what the government cannot do; it says the right “shall not be infringed.”

The two articles below are excellent opinions about where we are in our once great country.

AMERICANS’ FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS ARE DISSIPATING RAPIDLY, TIME TO CLING TO YOUR GUNS

Ammoland Inc. Posted on February 20, 2022 by Roger Katz
Opinion Gone are Free Speech, Freedom of Association, Privacy, Fair and Equal Justice Under the Law . . . Will Loss of Property Rights in One’s Firearms Be Next?

Americans have never been so close to losing “Freedom” and “Liberty” as they are at this very moment in time. And once lost, our “Freedom” and “Liberty” will, indeed, be lost forever. The forces that crush nations and people will see to it.

As western “democracies” model themselves on the Collectivist example of Communist China, Americans should stop and think, and ask themselves: Is this what I really want? Am I so fearful of what my own Government has become that I will not take a stand against it when the time comes for action? Are those fundamental, sacred, unalienable, immutable, eternal. Those God-given Rights that the framers of a free Republic codified in the Bill of Rights of the U.S. Constitution, so unimportant to me, so ephemeral, so “malleable,” I am willing to do without them? That I am willing to forsake them, lest I incur the wrath of Government—the wrath of a powerful, and hungry, and jealous Tyrant if I refuse to surrender them; to revoke them once and forevermore?

This Government, this Federal Government, my Government, that has turned its back on me. That has taken my right to dissent, my right to associate with like-kind, my right to worship the one true God, my right to petition Government, and even my right to keep private to me my own cherished, secret thoughts from unreasonable search seizure—how much more will this Government demand of me?

And I know the answer to that question before I even ask it.

For, as long as I bear a firearm, I pose, in that very act, a visible threat to this Government, my Government. And so I know that, before long, this Government, my Government, will demand of me one final token, one more freedom to relinquish. It is a little thing really, as the Government tells me—a token of loyalty toward it, demonstrating my obeisance to it, that I may obtain absolution from it.

I must surrender my firearms to this Government, my Government.

And, if I refuse to do so, what then? This token requested of me is, I know, less a request than a demand—an order made to me. Either I capitulate to this creature that was created to serve me or I must face the consequences for my temerity. It is either this or that. The one or the other.

There is no other way for me; no other choice to be given me. There is no way to split the difference. There is to be no negotiation in the matter, no time to mull over the matter. And there is to be no truce. The Government has made it all very clear to me: unconditional surrender. And, failure to comply is to risk indefinite detention, or, if recalcitrant, then to dare clash with the tyrant's mighty force. But, then, as to the latter, it has happened before.

THE FOUNDERS OF OUR REPUBLIC TOOK UP THE CHALLENGE, THREW DOWN THE GAUNTLET, AND ROUTED A MIGHTY POWER THAT HAD STRUTTED ITS INVINCIBILITY.

I will soon have to make my choice, as my forefathers once, long ago, had to make theirs. Surrender or fight.

There are no half-measures here. To submit willingly to tyranny, or to do so grudgingly and half-heartedly, or to do so openly angrily—raging all the while—is, at the end of the day, all one and the same. Submission, however one does submit, is still to humble oneself before a Tyrant. At the end of the day, it is still submission. It is still self-deprecation. It is still prostration before a monstrous evil. And this Tyrannical Government cares not how I shall humble myself, how it is that I submit before it; only that I do so, and that I do so—completely, irrevocably.

It is singularly odd to contemplate, two hundred and forty years later, that we Americans have, in the first quarter of a new century, come full circle from that day, long ago, on July 2, 1776, when the Delegates to the Continental Congress met to sign the Declaration of Independence...

“By signing the Declaration of Independence, the delegates were putting their lives on the line. If they were to lose the war for independence, then the British government would execute them in a very painful and nasty way. Thus, although we do not know if Benjamin Franklin actually said, ‘we must all hang together, or... we shall all hang separately,’ it is likely that that idea was in the minds of the delegates that day in July.”

And now, despite the blatant lies of a seditious Press to the contrary, it is plain for all to see if they will but only look, that our own Government has dared to turn its back on its own people. It has turned its back on those very people to whom it was created for no other purpose than to serve. America's Founding Fathers would no doubt see some caustic irony in this and much more than a little concern, wondering whether their own courage, sacrifice, and perseverance—and that of tens of millions of other valiant American Patriots, who, in the intervening years, fought and died to preserve and strengthen an independent and sovereign Nation, a free Constitutional Republic, and a free and sovereign people—had all been in vain.

If Americans fail to stand up against tyranny, they will be compelled to reap the consequences for their cowardice...

This page in our Nation's wondrous history has yet to be written. How records of history do set this chapter down depends entirely on you and me: a chapter describing a free people that stood courageously, as one, against tyranny, or a chapter reduced to a footnote, little more than an afterthought, quickly jotted down, and just as quickly, forgotten. A small annotation that speaks of the humiliation of a once-great Nation and of a once-great people—of a once-great, and free, and sovereign people who did not take a stand against a Tyrant, but chose, instead, to grovel before it. And if they fail to stand against this Tyrant, they will then no further choices will be made by them, but only by the Tyrant, for them.

If Americans fail to stand up against tyranny, they will be compelled to reap the consequences for their cowardice; consequences that affect not only themselves but their offspring, all those generations of Americans to come; for future generations will subsist as mere subservient vessels of tyranny in the gangrenous remains of what was once thought to be an imperishable Nation. These lost generations shall never taste of nor know of freedom and liberty, nor will they even recall the name, ‘American Citizen.’

We, Americans, have ample warning of the fate that awaits us if we choose wrong. A dire outcome can be avoided, today. Tomorrow will be too late.

The choice to be made is yours and mine while it can be made, but only in this, the present moment. Be mindful that our Country is being taken from us. Be mindful of that. The noose over our Country and over our citizenry, and over our essential freedoms is tightening, slowly but inexorably. Be prepared to resist Tyranny.

“Today may change tomorrow but once today is gone, tomorrow can only look back in sorrow that the warning was ignored.”*

THERE IS NO FREEDOM & LIBERTY WHERE A COUNTRY'S CITIZENRY IS DISARMED

Ammoland Inc. Posted on February 19, 2022 by Roger Katz

It is not by accident that the expressions, 'Freedom' and 'Liberty' are coming under fire.

After all, Government, whether modeled as an outright dictatorship or as a benign, seemingly benevolent democratic construct, is a constant threat to the sanctity and inviolability of the human Soul. The Founders of our Federal Government knew this, and their meticulous construction of a Government that would function within a free Constitutional Republic, with all the safeguards employed in the Articles of the U.S. Constitution, though absolutely necessary to prevent tyranny, would not of itself be sufficient to guard against tyranny.

Where there is Government, even Representative Government, such as ours, their tyranny always lingers in the shadows. The Nation's Bill of Rights alone prevents incursion of tyranny. And the Antifederalists demanded an express delineation of fundamental, immutable, unlimited God-given Rights, beyond the power of Government to modify, abrogate, deny or ignore.

These fundamental, natural rights would serve alone as a shield, the ultimate safeguard against inevitable Government encroachment on freedom and liberty. For, the founders knew full well that, even a Government such as ours, with limited, carefully demarcated powers would eventually subvert the will of the people. And we are seeing that occurring and with rapidity now.

Evidence of encroaching tyranny on our people is everywhere, and it is glaring.

Information disseminated is deceptive. Dissent is heavily controlled or censored. Privacy is nonexistent. Petitions are denied out-of-hand. Average American citizens face unlawful detention. They have been systematically brutalized and ostracized for their political, social, and even religious beliefs. The government has infiltrated Americans' associations and harassed its members, even attempting to seduce them into committing crimes so that the Government can shut them down.

The government no longer even bothers to hide wide-range violations and abuses of fundamental rights and liberties. But a final lockdown on freedom and liberty eludes them. Government cannot so easily confiscate physical objects without escaping the notice of their deed. A citizen's firearms cannot so easily be taken from him. But it will try; is trying all the time to do just that—at the moment, through incremental efforts.

And this Government, our Government is tiring of utilizing half-measures. The Government wants to seize the massive stockpile of citizenry's firearms. This is no secret. The toadies have made the aim clear.

The question is—

Can the U.S. Government really succeed in disarming the American populace?

The Governments of the two Commonwealth Nations, New Zealand and Australia have not had any trouble doing this. They have been able to disarm their populations without issue. But can the Federal Government here in the United States accomplish such a vast undertaking? This is not likely. And it is unlikely for this reason:

Consider: the two Commonwealth Countries, along with every other Country on Earth, apart from our own, do not recognize the God-given right of the people to keep and bear arms as a potent check on tyranny. The United States is the one holdout Nation.

At some point the would-be Destroyers of our Country will try to disarm Americans, as try they must if the Rothschild/Soros "Open Society" agenda is to succeed. Once push comes to shove, Americans are going to have to take a stand—all Americans, and we are rapidly moving to that fateful point.

"Freedom" and "Liberty" are not mere abstractions, even as tyrannical western Governments, including the Government of the European Union in Brussels, and those of the Commonwealth Nations, and, sadly, the present Government here at home in the U.S., now claim they are but that and nothing more. See the article on the Canadian CBC Radio website:

"Freedom is a malleable term — one that's open to interpretation."

Perhaps it would seem so to tyrants that would have little if any use for it. But, had the Founders of our Republic thought "Freedom," and its sacred kin, "Liberty," so malleable as to be nothing more than phantasms, mere will-o'-the-wisps, they would hardly have risked their lives and well-being to attain them.

Nor can "Freedom" and "Liberty" be perceived as so insubstantial that a towering edifice—the United States, a free Constitutional Republic, the envy of the world—would have existed and persisted for well over two hundred years. As John Adams, a Founding Father, and Second President of the United States said;

"But a Constitution of Government once changed from Freedom, can never be restored. Liberty once lost is lost forever."

<https://www.ammoland.com/2022/02/no-freedom-liberty-countrys-citizenry-disarmed/#ixzz7LedSFIYs>

Be alert, resolute, steadfast, and faithful to our Constitutional Republic my friends.
