NEWS FROM SKEET, TRAP & SPORTING CLAYS

Well we're in a new year already. I hope Santa brought you a new gun to shoot.

On December 9th we held a members only Sporting Clays tournament. We had 42 participants, who were willing to brave the elements, with 15 winning cash prizes. The rain stopped just in time. We had a great lunch prepared by Joe Thompson and company and of course Ed's banana pudding and Pat's brownies. We plan to have two of these shoots next year. One with leaves and one without leaves.

The Polar Bear Fun Skeet League has started. You still have time to participate. Shooting starts at 5:00pm on Thursdays. If you have never seen targets thrown under the lights you are in for a treat. They are easier to hit because you can see them better.

Shooting registered Trap targets on Tuesdays will resume March 5th. Summer range hours will start first of March and run thru October.

Remember the new members orientation which is required before shooting at S&T and Sporting Clays. Orientations are done each Saturday morning at 10:00am at both locations.

Don't forget to volunteer we need your help.

Larry McNamee President of STSC

“Freedom is not “by chance” but “by choice.” And once you make that choice, you have to work and fight for your freedom every day.” Author unknown

As the Founding Fathers knew, the last line of defense of our Constitutional Republic is the Second Amendment. This amendment was put in the Bill of Rights to hold the government ultimately accountable to the American People. The last four words of the Second Amendment were included so that there could be NO wiggle room by those who wish to disarm the people. “SHALL NOT BE INFRINGED” means the American People have the RIGHT TO KEEP AND BEAR ARMS - period, no discussion.

To say there is friction brewing in America is an understatement. All the tinder for a huge fire has been accumulating for years. It seems that there are those in America who want a divided and destroyed America. We who are patriotic Americans must stand strong. We must say NO to government encroachments of our freedom and liberty. We must urge our state and federal legislators to stand strong against this push toward socialism. We must be ready to protect our families and friends. We are the last line of defense for America, but we must throw the match that starts the fire.

James Madison wrote in Federalist 46, when he was advocating for passage of the Constitution he principally authored: “The ultimate authority ... resides in the people alone. ... The advantage of being armed, which the Americans possess over the people of almost every other nation ... forms a barrier against the enterprises of ambition, more insurmountable than any.”

Almost 50 years later, Justice Joseph Story, appointed to the Supreme Court by James Madison, affirmed in his magisterial “Commentaries on the Constitution” Madison's assertion about the preeminence of the Second Amendment: “The right of the citizens to keep and bear arms has justly been considered as the palladium [safeguard] of the Liberties of a Republic; since it offers a strong moral check against usurpation and arbitrary power of the rulers; and will generally, even if these are successful in the first instance, enable the People to resist and triumph over them.”

While generations of leftist politicians have advocated for rule of men (tyranny) over Rule of Law (Liberty), the irrevocable fact remains that the Second Amendment is the First Civil Right because it assures the protection of all others. It is for that reason that the current cadres of socialist Democrats devote so much political capital to the infringement of those rights.

But the strategy they are using most effectively to achieve that goal is not legislation, it's shaping public opinion. Examples are “assault weapons” and “weapons of war.” While deconstruction and repeal of the Second Amendment is the Democrat goal, their methods are to shape public opinion by suppressing speech that does not conform to their political agenda. And the frontline propagandists of that strategy are their Leftmedia platforms and Big Tech.

The Second Amendment is Our Gun Permit

In the heart of our Constitution lies a truth too often obscured by bureaucratic red tape and political maneuvering: the Second Amendment is, was, and always will be our inherent gun permit. This isn't a radical notion; it's a cornerstone of American liberty, a principle as old as the nation itself.

The Founding Fathers didn't mince words when they crafted the Constitution. 'The right of the people to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed.' Clear. Concise. Unambiguous. They didn't talk about permits, licenses, or government permissions. They understood that the right to bear arms was fundamental, a necessary bulwark against tyranny.

Yet, here we are today, facing an onslaught of regulations and restrictions that chip away at this foundational right. The notion that we need a government-issued permit to exercise a constitutional right is not just misguided; it's a dangerous precedent. It's a step down a slippery slope that leads away from liberty and towards governmental overreach.

Consider this: the rights enshrined in the First Amendment require no permit. We don't need government approval to speak our minds, practice our faith, or assemble in protest. Why then should the Second Amendment be any different? Why should the right to bear arms be subject to more scrutiny and limitation than the right to free speech or religious expression?

The push for gun permits is a symptom of a larger disease - a growing belief that the government knows best, that rights are not inherent but granted by those in power. This is a complete reversal of the principles upon which our nation was built. Our rights are not gifts from the government; they are inalienable, part of the very fabric of our being as Americans.

The argument often touted is that gun permits are necessary for public safety, to keep firearms out of the hands of criminals. But let's face reality: criminals don't follow laws. Gun permits don't deter crime; they hinder law-abiding citizens from exercising their rights. They create a society where only the government and the lawless have the means to wield force.

So, what's the path forward? It's a return to our roots, to the understanding that our rights are sacred and non-negotiable. We must reject the narrative that seeks to undermine our freedoms in the name of security. We must stand firm against any attempt to erode our constitutional rights, whether it's through permits, bans, or other forms of legislative sleight of hand.

To every American who cherishes freedom, the message is clear: the Second Amendment is your permit. It's a call to action, a reminder to vigilantly defend our liberties against those who would seek to diminish them.

This isn't just about guns; it's about the very essence of what it means to be free. It's about ensuring that the liberties we hold dear are not just preserved but fiercely protected. The Second Amendment is our gun permit, a testament to our forefathers' wisdom and foresight. Let's honor their legacy by upholding this right, unapologetically and without compromise.

Remember,

"The ultimate authority resides in the people alone."

December 6, 2023 - TN Firearms Association

Gun owners need to be prepared to demand that Legislators demonstrate a "Bruen Basis" for their legislative proposals.

Your rights are and have been ignored by the Tennessee Legislature as it has allowed unconstitutional infringements to persist and it is proposing new ones. Are you ready to get mad and defend your rights when they not only refuse to do so but openly attack them?

The Tennessee 2024 Legislative Session starts in January. Already, some bad bills have been filed and more are certain to come. Likewise, Tennessee Firearms Association is talking with some Legislators, those who have either proven their Second Amendment support or who are at least willing to discuss the issue, about pro-Second Amendment legislation. To be candid, there are a lot of laws, regulations, ordinances and even executive decisions in Tennessee which violate the Second Amendment and need to be addressed.

One of the tools that citizens, particularly gun owners, need to embrace and wield like a sword in defense of our rights as protected by the Second Amendment is the Supreme Court's June 2022 decision in New York State Rifle and Pistol Association v. Bruen, No. 20-843. Let's briefly look at what the Supreme Court said and why there is no avoiding the Bruen decision in Tennessee (although we have received reports for over a year that at least one Republican House member has asserted that Bruen is irrelevant in Tennessee).

The "Bruen Basis"

First, in Bruen, the Supreme Court made clear that the approaches that many lower courts, legislators and government officials had relied upon to knowingly infringe the rights protected by the Second Amendment were invalid. The Supreme Court stated that the Second and Fourteenth Amendments together guarantee individuals not only the right to "keep" firearms in their homes, but also the right to "bear arms" in public, meaning the ability of "ordinary, law-abiding citizens" to carry constitutionally protected arms "for self-defense outside the home," free from infringement by either federal or state governments. Bruen, at pp. 2122, 2134.

Second, the Supreme Court held that, "when the Second Amendment's plain text covers an individual's conduct, the Constitution presumptively protects that conduct. To justify its regulation, the government may not simply posit that the regulation promotes an important interest. Rather, the government must demonstrate that the regulation is consistent with this Nation's historical tradition of firearm regulation. Only if a firearm regulation is consistent with this Nation's historical tradition may a court conclude that the individual's conduct falls outside the Second Amendment's 'unqualified command.'" Bruen at p. 2126.

This second point contains two statements that are critically important. The first statement is that under the Bruen standard, if an activity (e.g., carrying in public) is an activity that falls under the Second Amendment negative mandate ("shall not be infringed”), then it is presumed legally and constitutionally that the activity is protected from any government infringement – period. The second part of the statement is what we will refer to as the “Bruen Basis”. That is, once it is determined that the conduct is protected by the Second Amendment then the government bears the burden, that is it “must demonstrate”, that the regulation (i.e., a statute, law, regulation, ordinance, etc.) is “consistent with this Nation’s historical tradition”. If the government cannot or could not demonstrate by clear evidence in a court of law that the regulation, perhaps a proposed law, is unconstitutional and prohibited by the Second Amendment’s negative mandate.

Further, the “Bruen Basis” requires the government to not only prove that the regulation is consistent with the Nation’s historical tradition, but the Supreme Court made clear that the national historical tradition that is relevant is the tradition that existed as of 1791 when the states ratified and adopted the Second Amendment. In the words of the Court that requires a determination of what the “public understanding of the right to keep and bear arms” was as of 1791. Bruen at pp. 2137–38.

The Supreme Court also considered whether the government’s frequent reliance on “public safety” or modern necessity was relevant to the question of whether specific conduct is protected by the Second Amendment’s negative mandate. The Supreme Court’s Bruen opinion makes clear that there are no “ifs, ands, or buts,” and it does not matter (even a little bit) how important, significant, compelling, or overriding the government’s justification for or interest in infringing the right might be. It does not matter whether a government restriction “minimally” versus “severely” infringes the rights protected by the Second Amendment. There are no relevant statistical studies to be consulted. There are no sociological arguments to be considered. The ubiquitous problems of crime or the density of population do not affect the equation. The only appropriate inquiry, according to the Supreme Court in Bruen, is what the “public understanding of the right to keep and bear arms” was during the ratification of the Second Amendment in 1791...” Bruen at pp. 2137–38.

Finally, Bruen makes clear that the government’s burden to establish the historical tradition is not satisfied by pointing to one or even a few states or territories that had such law in 1791 (much less later). It is irrelevant that that the law or proposed law is consistent with laws passed in the early part of the 20th Century (for example the National Firearms Act) or later in the century

(such as the 1968 Gun Control Act) or even much later restrictions such as those that the ATF has tried to impose. Further, it is irrelevant that Tennessee has or may have had any particular law over the last 2 centuries. Bruen makes clear that the government must demonstrate a “national” tradition – not a tradition embraced by one or even a few states.
